

Telekom Srbija Belgrade Summer School 2009

Dear Sir/Ms,

On the following pages you will find important information regarding your stay in Belgrade during Telekom Srbija Belgrade Summer School 2009. We hope this information will help you spend a lovely fortnight in Belgrade this summer. Please contact us if you have any questions or concerns.

Registration

Foreigners are required by law to register themselves with the police station in their district within 24 hours of receiving a Serbian entry stamp at a border crossing or airport. Registration is done automatically by hotel staff upon check-in. However, the BSS Organisation Committee will take your passport and information and perform Registration on your behalf with the police in the district in which you are staying.

Before visiting the police station you will need to obtain a Foreigner Registration Form from a nearby newsagent or bookstore (these usually cost 15 RSD (~€0.15, ~US$0.20)). With completed form in hand, your host and you should submit your passport and your host's Serbian ID card along with the Registration Form. You will receive the bottom half of the Form to carry with you; when exiting the country, you will be required to present it to the Border Police. Sometimes they will not ask for it, and you can keep it as an administrative memento. Never forget, though, that failure to register and obtain the bottom half of the Registration Form can result in prosecution and a large fine.

Language

English is more commonly spoken by the younger generation in Serbia and although elderly people usually speak broken or no English at all, they usually have some knowledge of another European language (French/German/Russian). Be patient, and always ask if someone speaks your language before making any assumptions.

Useful phrases in Serbian:

- Ne razumem Vas - I don't understand you
- Izvinite - I'm sorry
- Hvala - Thanks (common/informal)
- Hvala Vam puno - Thank you very much (very polite/formal)
- Koliko ovo košta - How much is it?( Š pronounced similar to Schwarzenegger, or the English combination SH )
- Dobro jutro - Good morning
- Dobar dan - Good afternoon
- Zdravo - Hello
- Čao - Hello/good-bye (informal, pronounced similar to ciao; used both when greeting somebody and when leaving)
- Molim Vas/Molim Te - Please (polite/informal),
- Do vidjenja - Goodbye
- Ne - No
- Da - Yes
- Živeli! - Cheers!

The letter "J" is pronounced like the letter "Y", or "J" in German.

Also expect to hear analogues to words in other languages used in everyday conversation, such as kul (cool), ekstra (extra) and super.

Written Serbian-on outdoor signs, et cetera-will either be in Serbian Cyrillic, Latin characters or both. There is no hard-and-fast rule about this. Taking the time to familiarise oneself with the basics of Serbian Cyrillics helps enormously.

Culture and education

Belgrade is the centre of Serbian culture, education and science. The great majority of institutions from the field of science and art, having a national importance, are situated in Belgrade. The Serbian Academy of Sciences and Arts, established in 1886 as the Serbian Royal Academy; The National Library of Serbia, founded in 1832; The National Museum, established in 1841 and The National Theatre, founded in 1869 are located in Belgrade. Also, The University of Belgrade, founded in 1808 and The University of Arts are situated in the city.

The majority of citizens of Serbia are Orthodox Christians. The Serbian Orthodox Church has been autocephalous since 1219. Church and state are separate.

Belgrade has precious monuments of spiritual culture, monasteries and churches of various denominations. According to the census from 2002, 90% of all citizens of Belgrade were Orthodox, 1.3% Islamic, 1% Catholic, approximately 0.2% Protestant and some 0.03% Jewish.

Political system

The political system of the Republic of Serbia is based on multi-party parliamentary democracy. Serbia has the President of the Republic, the National Assembly and the Government. Local authority is organised on the principle of local self-government through municipal or city assemblies, governments and administrative bodies.

A milestone of the new Serbian political history was 5 October 2000, when half a century long communist rule ended after massive post-election demonstrations. Soon afterwards Serbia returned to the family of European democracies after many years of isolation and sanctions.

Beside dozens of political parties, there are also hundreds of non-governmental organisations and a large number of unions in Serbia.

Shopping

The currency in Serbia is the dinar (RSD). Money can be exchanged at official exchange offices (locally called “Menjačnica”, often carrying the emblem of the National Bank of Serbia outside the building), which are clearly labelled. They are numerous in downtown Belgrade, and at the airport. MIČKO exchange office (4 Vuka Karadzica St) changes all currencies, including rare ones. There are many ATMs, which accept foreign bank and credit cards without a glitch (note: machines are new so you won't have any problems using them). Bank cards are not accepted in many shops, restaurants and hotels. The dinar is not widely convertible outside Serbia; it is advisable to re-convert your remaining dinars to Euros or other major currencies before leaving the country.

The stores work into late hours during work days while on Saturdays they normally close around 3 am while most of them are not open on Sundays. Therefore, finding an activity for the weekend must be thought of beforehand. At night, however, there are bars, cafés and discotheques that are open, selling cheaply priced drinks. Belgrade is reputed to have some of the best night life in Europe.

Clothes and Accessories

Import taxes make clothes and shoes in Serbia very expensive. Many items from common European chains can be found for 20% less in neighbouring Budapest. Still, Belgrade has many flagship stores, mostly located on Knez Mihailova Street, or the pedestrian zone. They include Escada, Max Mara, Hugo Boss, Tommy Hilfiger, Sweet Years, Paul & Shark, Lacoste, Zara, Gas, Diesel, Miss Sixty, Energie, Tom Tailor, Tally Weil, Springfield, Mango, Cortefiel, Pedro del Hiero, Levi's, and Marella.

There are also many multi-brand stores selling higher class designer clothes and accessories. The most known ones are Artisti (a chain of stores throughout the city) who have the new Gucci, Prada, Bikkembergs, Dior, Tod's, DSquared2, Dolce & Gabbana, Moschino collections. The second store chain is Land featuring brands such as Just Cavalli, D&G, CNC by Costume National, Iceberg. New stores include Marks and Spencer, Top Shop, Sephora and New Yorker.

The official distributor of Armani Collezioni, Emporio Armani, Armani Jeans, Versace Jeans Couture is Alta Moda store in Kralja Petra Street. Close to Alta Moda are other designer multi brand stores such as Monobrand and EuroModa. Also, there is a shop called MilModa targeting the younger population. Thus, it features Armani Jeans, Missoni Sport, D&G, Etro, Bogner, La Martina and BluMarine constantly and from time to time fashion brands such as DSquared2, Richmond, Prada, creations of John Galliano and many others (they are official dealers). It is situated near St. Sava's temple.

Multi-brand store concept is catching on very quickly, so it's not going to be a problem finding all types of clothes. Best concept stores are Buzz (Knez Mihailova Street), chain of street-wear stores called Urban and Avanguardia.

Searching for accessories, watches: You can also find a variety of brands, from the affordable (Swatch & Fossil) to the most expensive (Breitling for Bentley, Cartier, Boucheron, Rado...) Accessories can be found everywhere but for the hippest you can see Dve Šmizle (Millennium Shopping Mall, Knez Mihailova Street) and Time Zone feat. Kenzo, Christian Lacroix Bijoux, Miss Sixty Jewelry and others (Makedonska Street, next to Politika newspaper headquarters).

Shopping Malls

- Delta City, the largest shopping mall in the region, located in New Belgrade's Block 67
- The Fair-known as Sajam-with a large choice of clothes for a much lower price
- Block 70, with its Chinese market, where you can buy dirt-cheap clothing imported from China. Quality is lower.
- Mercator Centre
- Immo Center
- IDEA Extra Hypermarket
- Veropoulos Hypermarket (New Belgrade)
- Tempo Hypermarket
- M-Rodic Megamarket Hypermarket
- Verano Object - Trosarina
- Interex Konjarnik
- Verano-Vero Multifunctional Centre
- Merkur Bezanijaska Kosa
- Ušće Multifunctional Centre

Eating

The Serbs are very proud of their food, which is heavy on grilled meats and sausages, local cheeses and bread. Salads are primarily tomato, cucumber and onion, or cabbage. Local produce is fresh and organic.

Belgrade has hundreds of restaurants specialising in local cuisine and a few international restaurants. On the whole, prices are cheap compared to Western Europe with main dishes ranging from 8 to 25 dollars per person.

Most Serbian restaurants offer "rostitlj", a large plate of various grilled meats, or any possible variety of grilled chicken wrapped in bacon and stuffed with cheese. It is possible to order fresh salads, plates of grilled vegetables, crepes, or omelettes if you are not carnivorous. Make sure you try "pljeskavica", the Serbian version of a hamburger, which is about five times larger than an American hamburger and can be purchased from fast food restaurants. You can find your typical McDonalds and Pizza Hut, but most of the fast food restaurants in Belgrade are local and sell baked goods, pizza, sandwiches, and “palačinke” (the Serbian version of a crepe). Some may go beyond that, selling Turkish delicacies such as baklava, tulumba and other Greek/Turkish treats.

Snacking and eating on the go in Belgrade are easy and cheap. Bakeries-called “pekara”-are ubiquitous in the city centre, and you will find a wide assortment of breads, sweet and savoury pastries, sandwiches and pizza on offer. A snack or light meal of pastry and drinkable yoghurt will give you an added boost when walking about the city centre.

Foods that vegetarians and meat eaters alike should try include “kajmak” (something between cream cheese and butter) and “ajvar”, a savoury spread made out of red peppers. It is also worth visiting “pijaca” (green market) to buy some fresh fruit, vegetables and other grocery items. The farmer’s market at Zeleni Venac, close to Moscow hotel, is one of the largest and the one with the least expensive merchandise in the city. Contained in a newly-built complex, it makes for an enjoyable Saturday morning experience, with the lively hustle and bustle of people milling about and stall-owners trying to attract customers. Depending on the season, an amazing assortment of fruit and vegetables can be found in farmer’s markets, including watermelons, olives, wild mushrooms and fresh figs. Take the time to explore the stalls, and compare the quality and prices of the produce.

There are a handful of international restaurants, including Japanese, Chinese and Indian. These are moderately priced to very expensive. Many people dine out at “Peking” restaurant, and “Mao Tao” is an excellent choice as well for the Chinese. Dju-Dju and Ikki Sushi Bars are perfect places for those who like sushi or other tasty Japanese dishes. Zapata’s is the best (and pretty much only) Mexican restaurant in town.

Skadarlija is a pleasant street filled with Serbian and Italian restaurants, not to be missed by gourmands. It is famous for its old restaurants, some of which have been around for over 100 years. Most of the restaurants have string orchestras which play a selection of traditional and modern Serbian songs.

Drinking

Tap water in Belgrade is perfectly safe. There is a wide range of bottled waters on offer in grocery stores, supermarkets, and newsstands (“trafika”).

The Serbs love beer, and it is possible to buy a variety of domestic beers such as Jelen, Lav, MB, Pils,... along with a few imported ones, at very cheap prices. The domestic beers are quite decent. Made in Serbia beers also include Heineken, Amsteel, Tuborg, Stella Artois, and Beck’s. Belgrade holds a Beer Festival annually in August.

Local wines can be good, although more expensive tends to mean more drinkable, and many of the less expensive bottles are less than satisfactory. The national alcoholic drink is “rakija”, a Serbian brandy that is very strong and makes a good souvenir. For the sober crowd, Belgrade has blueberry, raspberry, tomato, peach, apple, strawberry, and any other kind of juice you can think of.

There are a couple of places worth visiting if you are a fan of café culture. The street best known for its trendy cafes is definitely Strahinjića Bana. On this street, cafés are full even on weekdays. All cafés serve the usual continental coffees, such as espresso and cappuccino. However, regular coffee comes in the form of Turkish coffee-not filtered coffee. If you want a filtered coffee, you need to specify this when ordering, and not all coffee shops have it. Also very popular is whipped instant coffee,

Culture Tip: How to toast, Serbian style!

Like everywhere, the Serbs love to toast when in good company, whether it’s in a pub or at home with friends. When toasting in Serbia, it is expected that you look your friends at the table directly in the eyes whilst clinking glasses as a sign of respect. Say “Živeli!” (Cheers!) to everyone and take a sip. Repeat as necessary, and enjoy a night out in Belgrade!

commonly referred to simply as "Nes" (as in, Nescafé). A café called Mali Prag (across from Prag hotel) is thought by some to offer the best "Serb Coffee" in the world.

The best atmosphere is on Friday evenings when the trendy youth of Belgrade descend to enjoy the music and each other. Out of numerous cafés, the best ones are: Insomnia, KontraBar, Buongiornio (also a pastry shop), Nachos, Veprov Dah (a Scottish pub), Duomo (Italian and Mediterranean restaurant and café), Ipanema etc. The second café zone is Obilićev Venac (a street parallel to Knez Mihailova). The best cafés there are Iron, Jelena, Zu Zu's, Irish pub, Simbol and many others. Third café zone (also a going out zone) is quay next to Yugoslavia hotel in Zemun. On the quay, there are numerous river boats ("splavovi"), many of which are cafés, restaurants and clubs.

Other places worth visiting: "The Three Carrots Irish pub"-bills itself as the first Irish pub in Belgrade, quite easy to miss, just turn left at the bombed out buildings coming up from the train station and walk on the left hand side of the road.

Stay safe

Overall, Belgrade is a very safe city, but like anywhere, you should always keep money, mobile phones, travel documents and other valuable personal items in secure places. It is important to stay away from shanty Roma towns like "Cupboard City" or "Kartonsko naselje" in Serbian. If you own a car, it is preferable to have a security system. Traffic laws are usually observed, although nervous drivers can change lanes suddenly or make dangerous turns when avoiding traffic during rush hour. Taxi drivers often swerve in and out of lanes. Pay close attention to traffic signals as a pedestrian, as Serbian drivers tend to run through red lights.
